A warm welcome to our 2022/23 season

We are thrilled to share with you a new season – the 90th anniversary of our beloved London Philharmonic Orchestra – a season that celebrates the transformative power of music.

This season we bring some of the most beautiful music written for orchestra to Brighton, performed by world-class artists. Beethoven, Brahms, Sibelius and Tchaikovsky all feature, alongside Bruch, Mendelssohn and a Brighton premiere for Cuban composer Tania León.

We are delighted that Karina Canellakis joins us for our opening concert in Brighton following rave reviews in her first year as Principal Guest Conductor. She conducts Sibelius's hugely popular Violin Concerto, played by Grammy Award-winning violinist Augustin Hadelich, before Beethoven's revolutionary 'Eroica' Symphony. It is sure to be a thrilling start to the season.

It is equally exciting to present Alpesh Chauhan, who made his Royal Festival Hall debut with the Orchestra last season, with bright young American violinist Randall Goosby. Both artists are making big impressions in the classical music sector, and we are delighted to be able to introduce them to you.

We enter the New Year with two concerts packed with drama and storytelling. Gergely Madaras conducts an all-Tchaikovsky programme, including his enormous Fifth Symphony and a performance from Zlatomir Fung, the youngest musician ever to win First Prize at the International Tchaikovsky Competition Cello Division. And in April, Dima Slobodeniouk conducts the second UK performance of Tania León's Stride before pianist Beatrice Rana brings the season to a dazzling close.

We look forward to the future with excitement and welcome you to join us at Brighton Dome for what is set to be a memorable season.

Sibelius Violin Concerto Beethoven Symphony No. 3 (Eroica)

Karina Canellakis conductor
Augustin Hadelich violin

The opening chords of Beethoven's 'Eroica' Symphony are like a jolt of electricity – and some would say that classical music is still reeling from the shockwaves. Forged in an age of revolution, this is a symphony on an uncompromising scale, delivered with a directness that never gets any less startling. In other words, it's perfect for the LPO's charismatic Principal Guest Conductor Karina Canellakis – just as the fire and ice of Sibelius's Violin Concerto are ideally suited to our soloist Augustin Hadelich: a violinist who's been praised for his sense of 'tightrope danger' and 'no-holds-barred approach'. He should be in his element.

Brahms Hungarian Dances
Nos. 1, 5 and 6
Bruch Violin Concerto No. 1
Brahms Symphony No. 3

Alpesh Chauhan conductor
Randall Goosby violin

Classical music doesn't always do exactly what it says on the tin. Brahms never told the story behind his Symphony No. 3 but, from impetuous opening to sunset finish, it's clear that there's a tale here that runs too deep for words. The young British conductor Alpesh Chauhan opens up vast emotional vistas, and he's joined in Bruch's hugely popular First Violin Concerto by Randall Goosby, whose album Roots was Presto Music's 2021 Debut Recording of the Year. But first – just to get things buzzing – Brahms cuts loose in the fields of Hungary, with a fistful of his zingy, folk-inspired Hungarian Dances.

Tchaikovsky Romeo and Juliet: Fantasy Overture
Tchaikovsky Rococo Variations
Tchaikovsky Symphony No. 5

Gergely Madaras conductor
Zlatomir Fung cello*

‘With desire and passion’ wrote Tchaikovsky over the second movement of his Fifth Symphony, but in a way, that could go for almost everything he ever wrote – glorious melodies, raw passion, and sheer, heart-on-sleeve emotional commitment come as standard. In this all-Tchaikovsky concert, conductor Gergely Madaras begins as he means to go on, with the hugely popular Romeo and Juliet Overture, before diving headlong into the sweeping autobiographical drama of the Fifth Symphony. And in between (because even Tchaikovsky had to relax sometimes), cellist Zlatomir Fung brings out all the brilliance, wit and charm of the playful Rococo Variations.

Tania León Stride
Mendelssohn Piano Concerto No. 1
Sibelius Lemminkäinen Suite

Dima Slobodeniouk conductor

Beatrice Rana piano

'A mighty hero, in his veins the blood of ages ... but alas, he had his failings.' In Finnish myth, Lemminkäinen is a hero with a dark side: loving, hunting and challenging death itself. Sibelius retold his exploits in music that's as colourful as a film score and as gripping as any fantasy epic – with the eerie Swan of Tuonela at its shadowy heart. The heroine at the centre of Tania León's Stride, too, is someone 'who did not take "no" for an answer' – making it a wonderfully appropriate upbeat to the headlong energy of Mendelssohn's First Piano Concerto, played by the dazzling Beatrice Rana.
